Intelligence Research Report No. 214
December 13, 1989

Summary

As of December 1, 1989, China recognized and maintained diplomatic relations with 134 nations and the self-declared "state" of Palestine.<sup>2</sup> Since April 1988 China has exchanged diplomatic recognition with Bahrain, Qatar, and the self-declared Palestinian "state" but has suspended relations with Grenada, Liberia, and Belize.

Taiwan currently is recognized by 26 nations, up from 22 in April 1988. Most of the nations recognizing Taiwan are in Central America and the Caribbean, although the Republic of Korea, Saudi Arabia, and South Africa also recognize Taiwan. In 1989, Belize, Grenada, and Liberia switched diplomatic recognition from China to Taiwan; The Bahamas did so in 1988.
